Opacity _Opacity_ in Photoshop is used to determine how transparent a layer is. When you change the opacity of a layer, you change its transparency, which is expressed as a percentage. For example, if the Transparency setting on a layer is 20 percent (set in the Layers panel), then the layer is 20 percent opaque, which means that 20 percent of the pixels are open to view. You can layer a picture over the picture with more opacity and use the blend mode by using a screen layer blend.
